The UCLA Center for Autism Research and Treatment is seeking subjects to study the relationship between brain inflammation and symptoms of autism spectrum disorders (ASD). Subjects will undergo positron emission tomography (PET) brain imaging, and those with ASD will also receive treatment with an antibiotic. The study lasts 4 months and involves up to 9 visits to UCLA and the West LA VA Hospital for participants with ASD and 5 visits for controls.

Participants can receive up to $430

(310) 267-4798 | asdinflammation@mednet.ucla.edu